AUTHOR AND SUBJECT INDEX

A

- Aaronson, Abe L. (co-author): Hay fever, a review of the literature of 1950 (Progress in Allergy), 77
- Abramson, Harold A.: The patient: person or case? The presidential address (Convention Echoes), 346
- Abramson, Harold A.: Relief of itching by oil soluble and suspendable epinephrine compounds, 117
- Absorption of aminophylline (theophylline ethylenediamine) from the rectum. (S. H. Waxler and H. B. Moy), 179
- Acetylsalicylic acid, Myocardial changes precipitated by hypersensitivity to. (Eli Perchuk), 339
- ACTH and allergy (Progress in Allergy). (Ethan Allan Brown), 356, 496
- ACTH and cortisone, Chemical agents unsuccessfully employed as substitutes for. (C. R. K. Johnston), 197
- ACTH therapy, continuous intravenous, Relief of status asthmaticus by. (Stephen D. Lockey et al), 592
- Action, epinephrine, Prolonged. (Albert H. Unger and Leon Unger), 128
- Adenoidectomy and tonsillectomy, Influence of, on children with special reference to the allergic implications on respiratory symptoms. (Norman W. Clein), 568
- Administering allergenic extracts subcutaneously, A technique for minimizing severe and constitutional reactions when. (Nathan E. Silbert), 465
- Administration, injectable, The use of Chlor-Trimeton in allergic diseases, with special reference to its. (Clarence Bernstein and Solomon D. Klotz), 479
- Adrenergic, anticholinergic, and antihistaminic drugs, Treatment of bronchial conditions with a combination of. (Nathan E. Silbert), 469
- Agents, Chemical, unsuccessfully employed as substitutes for ACTH and cortisone. (C. R. K. Johnston), 197
- Aikman, Helen Lee (co-author): Allergenicity of modified and processed foodstuffs. II. Orange: anaphylactogenic properties of a specially prepared infant orange juice determined in the guinea pig, 682
- Air and smoke samplers (Industrial Allergy), 797
- Airborne fungus spores, Survey of, of the Boston area in relation to inhalant allergies. (Leo Kaplan), 109
- Airborne soil bacteria, Probable role of, in perennial hay fever and asthma. (L. O. Dutton), 615
- Allergenic extracts, subcutaneously, A technique for minimizing severe and constitutional reactions when administering. (Nathan E. Silbert), 465
- Allergenicity of modified and processed foodstuffs. II. Orange: anaphylactogenic properties of a specially prepared infant orange juice determined in the guinea pig. (Bret Ratner, Helen Lee Aikman and Joseph S. Thomas), 682
- Allergenicity of modified and processed foodstuffs. III. Peanut: non-allergenicity of peanut oil. (Bret Ratner, Samuel Untracht, Cecil Collins-Williams, H. John Malone, and Mary Retsina), 690
- Allergenicity of modified and processed foodstuffs. I. The use of a dual ingestion passive transfer test to determine the allergenicity of foodstuffs in man. (Bret Ratner, Samuel Untracht, and Cecil Collins-Williams) 675
- Allergens, specific, The identification of, in bacterial allergy and their use in desensitization. (Hermann Blatt), 53
- Allergic cataract. (Leon Bentolila, J. M. Vila Ortiz, and E. V. Bertotto), 36.
- Allergic child, The management of the. (Stuart S. Stevenson), 770
- Allergic disease, The Gothlin index in. Studies of capillary resistance in allergic states. I. (Hyman Sherman et al), 445
- Allergic diseases, Constant percentage increment of antigen dosage for desensitization in. (James C. Small and James C. Small, Jr.), 253
- Allergic diseases, The use of Chlor-Trimeton in, with special reference to its injectable administration. (Clarence Bernstein and Solomon D. Klotz), 479
- Allergic diseases, The use of histamine in the treatment of. (Hinton D. Jonez), 454
- Allergic disorders, Lobeline in the treatment of (Zoltan Bernath), 183

INDEX TO VOLUME 10

- Allergic eczematous sensitization to neomycin. (Rudolf L. Baer and Jacob S. Ludwig), 136
- Allergic gastrointestinal disorders of early infancy, The use of meat as the source of protein in milk substitutes in. (Jerome Glaser and Douglas E. Johnstone), 564
- Allergic illness, Self-inflicted, food-induced. (William Kaufman), 308
